

Student Safaris in East Africa

“Education is the most powerful weapon which you can use to change the world.” – Nelson Mandela

Experience a wide range of studies in environmental and social conditions in Kenya and Tanzania, two of the most beautiful, interesting, and diverse countries in the world. We offer customised educational and Study active travel experiences for students from Common Entrance at Prep School level through to University degree .

Kenya and Tanzania are the perfect place for educational travel experiences. We specialize in educational safari packages where Student Travelers can connect deeply and engage meaningfully with the richness and complexities of our eclectic countries through home stays, outdoor excursions, meetings with local leaders and engagement with civil society groups.

We offer the perfect locations in East Africa for educational tours and other enrichment programs. Whether it is geography, environmental studies, geology, conservation, health and social care or Art, Cultural Discovery, Sustainability and the Environment, Language Exploration, Community Service, Travel with Purpose and more. Students interact with the people who live side-by-side with wildlife, conduct research on local concerns, forge work opportunities, and pursue academic programs—all while still having fun. These programs are tailored to meet the needs of partner institutions and are backed by experienced, distinguished facilitators from local institutions.

Our student and school Safaris activities are also fun filled offering valuable learning experiences and lots of fun through various activities like White Water Rafting, Bungee

Jumping, Canoeing, Fishing, Quad Biking, Walking and Hiking Safaris.

Purpose and Objectives of our Africa Educational and Study Tours

1. To expose students to a part of planet Earth that they, or their parents, would probably never think of going.
2. To take students out of their comfort zone (safely), and into the realm of where almost 50 per cent (maybe more) of the world's population live - day-to-day survival.
3. To expose students to the beauty of East Africa - the people, the ecosystem, and the ability to be happy with few of the material comforts in life.
4. To experience a cultural exchange with the local people by visiting a mission school where the students have been orphaned.
5. To experience a Farm stay so that students get to experience a life on a farm on a large estate in which the enterprising farmers today use modern agricultural methods to work the land and who also supplement their living with learning safari tours
6. At the end of the trip, to be able to empathize with those - anywhere in the world, including your home country- who, through no direct fault of their own, are not able to enjoy the same comforts as people in the 'developed world'.
7. Perhaps, somewhere down the line and when this trip's participants are decision makers with financial resources at their disposal, they will contribute to help people in East Africa, to save endangered species, and to give groups of people less fortunate than themselves a chance to survive.
8. The objectives above are not necessarily curriculum related - they transcend formal education and deal with education about the real world.

Young Persons Learning Tours in Kenya and Tanzania

Our learning tours for teenagers are a life-enriching pre-higher education experience. These unique tours will include homestays with local families as well as safari adventures, all with the emphasis on fun and engaging learning. This is an incredible cultural and nature experience for youngsters interested in further studies in the field of Wildlife Conservation, Ecology and sustainability. Contact us for more information on the programmes offered.

Our field study tours in Kenya and Tanzania offer participants experiences that inspire and educate. The programs are professionally designed for you, your group and course of study to bridge theory with practical exposure. In addition, the participants are encouraged to recognize the similarities between global environmental and social issues at each destination.

The Study Programs engage with the following projects:

- “Adopt a School” links Kenyan Schools with an international counterpart. Students become pen pals and exchange information about cultures and lifestyles and participating in small fund raising projects.
- Community projects such as developing a school library, water projects and a community endowment fund to assist in local education and development.
- Research and Volunteer Opportunities for Students.
